FORT WORTH, TEXAS (September 13, 2023) – The Humane Society of North Texas (HSNT) is partnering with Best Friends Animal Society, a leading animal welfare organization working to make every shelter and every community no-kill by 2025, for the sixth National Adoption Weekend happening September 15-17. During this time, HSNT will be offering $25 adoptions at all our shelter locations.

No-kill means saving every dog or cat in a shelter who can be saved. A key component of achieving no-kill is collaborative partnerships like National Adoption Weekend to help get animals adopted and save more lives.

“The Humane Society of North Texas is thrilled to once again partner with Best Friends Animal Society during National Adoption Weekend!” said Destiny Vandeput, Director of Communications. “HSNT is continuing to face overcrowding issues, particularly when it comes to our large dogs, so being able to offer reduced adoption rates thanks to our partnership with Best Friends Animal Society goes a long way in finding pets their forever homes.”

Best Friends Animal Society, and more than 500 shelter and rescue partners have joined together for the national event to help alleviate overcapacity issues shelters across the country are facing. By adopting a dog or cat looking for a loving home, two lives are saved – that of the adopted pet, and another that can now take their space in the shelter. Individuals can help save lives by choosing to adopt a from local shelters or rescue groups like HSNT, instead of purchasing from a breeder or store.

“We are thrilled to host our sixth National Adoption Weekend, encouraging everyone in the community to save a life and add a new pet to their home,” said Julie Castle, CEO, Best Friends Animal Society. “Even if you can’t add to your family right now, you can take steps to make the country no-kill, including spaying or neutering your own pets, fostering kittens or an adult dog, volunteering, donating, and advocating for proven lifesaving programming for local pets,” added Castle.
